About Mersana Therapeutics

Mersana Therapeutics is a biotechnology company with highly differentiated and proprietary immunoconjugate platforms that allow for significantly higher drug loads, providing greater efficacy while simultaneously increasing tolerability. As a result, our platforms provide for expanded opportunities to provide meaningful clinical benefit to patients. Our lead program, XMT1522, is in Phase I clinical trials. Our second program, XMT1536, will be entering clinical trials in the latter part of 2017. In addition, our partners are advancing their pipeline of immunoconjugates using our platforms.
